A SEA STORY.

I could stand this no longer, of course; but, seeing that one er two of the passengers were noticing us from the poop. I looked as politic as it is possible to do when you've lost your temper; and, in fact, the whole disappointment of this hair-brained cuise of mine—out to speak of a few things one had to stand—curried me away at the moment. There was no scheme I wouldn't rather have been suspected of, by this time, than the real one—and having gone in chise of Violet Hyoe. I took a card one of my pock, and handed it quietly to Mr. Fren. 'You don't seem able to name me, sir, and it hawwerf. I give you my word, you me has the board for it; and as I take you to be a retulement by your place in this ship, why I shall expect the sat staction one gentiemen like idd give another, the first my way get a show, whought I, I hip i'm done with the took isheet trick ever a fellow played him elf! The man that ventures to call me green agure, or look at me as if he wanted to cool his eyer, hang me if he shan't answer for til. As for a woman, thought I—but oh, those two blue eves yonder—confound it as I caught sight of a white muslin skirt in the shade of the propawing above. I must say, for Finch, he took my last move coolly enough, turning round to give me another look, after glancing at the card. "Indeed!" said he, as if rather surprised; "well, sir, I'm your man for that, though it can't be so soon as tomorrow morning! A Company's officer may meet a lieutenant in the navy any time—av, and take his ship off the land too. I hope sir!" and with that he waked off ferward. L'outenant said I to myself; how did he give me my colo mission so pat, I wonder? and I pulled out an other card, when I found, to my great anny, and take his ship off the land too. I hope sir!" and with that he waked off ferward. L'outenant said I to myself; how did he give me my colo mission so pat, I wonder? and I pulled out an other card, when I found, to my great anny, and they were alt "Lieutenant Westwool R. N." Here's another confounded mess! thought rate, why, I should keep Weat wood clear of all recraps which, in his case, might be disagreeable enough; whereas, at present, he was known enly as the Reverent Mr. Thomas—and, as for his either shamming the Griffin, or giving hintshow to work the ship, he was one of those men you'd scarce know for a sailor, by aught in his manner, at least; and, indeed. Tom Weat wood always seemed to need a whole frigate's ways about him, with perhapsomewhat of a sir, to show what he really was.

Five minutes or so after this, it didn't certainly surprise me much to see the Indiaman laid on by surprise me much to see the Indiaman hald of the opposite tack, with her head actually north by-east, or within a few points of where the light have faded u to the skeet the mate seeming b this time to see the matter clearly, and que ly making his own of it.

The ship began to stand over towards the outer set of the current, which could now be seen, rippling along here and there to the surface, as the breeze fell slowly.

Four bells of the atterneon watch had struck—two o'clock, that is—when litckett the third mate, and one or two mea, went out to the arm of the spritsail yard across the howsprit, where they lowered away a heavy pitch-pot with a long strip of velow buning made fast to it, and wen, hted a little at the lowered and way out on her larboard bow, one could see the bright colored rag deep nown through the clear blue sater, streaming almost fairly north.

She appeared to be nearing the turn of the city, and the chief officer's spirits began to rise; Rickett screwed one eye close and tooked out under his horny palm with the other, doubtful, as he said, that we should "sight the lami off-deek before that. As for this trifle of an air aloft, sir," said he, "I'm afraid we won't"—

"Hoot, Mr. Reckett," put in Macleod, stenping one of his long trouser legs, down from over the quarter-deck awaing, like an ostrich that had been aloft, "ye're aye afraid, but it's not easy to see aloft, Mr. Fench, sir."

'How does the land lie now, Mr. Macleod?" asked the first officer.

EVERY MILITARY HOSPITAL IN CONNECTION WITH THE ARMY EVERY SUPPLY OF MEDICINE STORES MADE TO THE ARMY, SHOULD HAVE

HIBBARD'S WILD CHERRY BITTERS. This is more palatable than the best Port Wine, and answer in every respect a better purpose. For the sick, the weak, debilitated, convalescent soldiers, the best wines are not so useful as the WILD CHERRY BITTERS.

One hospital at Washington has ordered some for their patients, and all should do so, in all branches f the service on land or sea.

The WILD CHERRY BITTERS is an article of great value and importance combining the virtues of a tonic, with the power of calming irritation and diminishing nervous excitability. The benefits derived from its use, by persons afflicted with various diseases, show that it has a power over more than one of the diseases of human life; and although there is a unanimity of action, yet their appears from the certificates following, a diversity in its results: a variety of cures. The reason is that this preparation of WILD CHERRY, has a specific and certain action upon the Liver and other digestive organs; and that the want of action of the Liver is generally the cause of disease, or one of its fire symptoms, whether it be the Fever arising from the want of proper biliary secretion, functional derangement, or organic disease in either case, the BIT TERS are a safe and certain remedy; or whether the disease arises from sudden excitement, depression of spirits, or the faintness and lassitude, the use of the Bitters is judicious, and will surely remove the cause that protracts the disease.

This has been satisfactorily shown by the experince of hundreds. A single dose has saved life, and by timely using t has prevented long and aggravated diseases. This paration is a certain sedative, allaying all nercous excitability, and calming nervous irritation, palpitation of the heart, dizziness of the head, faintioss, and all diseases arising from a sympathetic acfection of the stomach, are entirely relieved by s very few doses of these B.tters.

They are also invaluable in all billous complaints, such as Fever and Ague, Jaundice, Bilious Colic, Platulency and Dysentery accompanied by dullness and lassitude.

A few doses will relieve PALPITATION OF

THE HEART, DIZZINESS OF THE HEAD, PAINTNESS, and all diseases arising from a sympathetic affection of the Stomach or constipation o In all DYSPEPTIC AFFECTIONS, as well as in the hecter fever of SCROFULA and CONSUMP-TION, it has been found to be highly serviceable. It is also a UNIVERSAL TONIC, unloading the Liver, stimulating the Secreting Organs, and dif-fusing into healthy action all the digestive apparatus, overcoming languor, drowsiness and lass sude, and imparting life and energy to the whole

This PREPARATION OF WILD CHERRY is aappily adapted to the wants of the Medical Faculty, and it has already become a favorate remedy with many Mcdical Practitioners.

HARD SUFFERING.

WONDERFUL EFFECTS OF THREE BOTTLES.
One of the Privates of the Eighth Regiment, as present in the city, relates the following:

"After our strival at Annapolis, our Company, under Capt. Lawrence, were employed in the trenches; the first night we slept with our feet in the water and our heads resting on our knapsacks for pillows. In the morning, our blankets, which was our only covering, were so wet with the heavy dews that we wrang the water out of them in streams; our limbs and joints were so stiff that we could hardly move them. I had three bottles of RADWAYS READY RELIEF, two of which I gave away to my comrades, and the other used myself and shared partly with others. We all bathed our limbs and joints with the READY RELIEF. In a few moments the lameness and stiffness, pain and wearlness, led us. We then—having no liquor with us—drank READY RELIEF and water. This cheered and invigorate us, and enabled us, with the aid of two meals, one sisting of hard biscuit and salt pork, to stand guard duty, work in the trenches, and wheelbarrows for twenty-four hours, having only two hours rest. So long as the READY RELIEF lasted, we could perform duty, but when that gave out I fell sick, and, by the order of our Surgeon, returned to this city.
